A fantastic six-piece horn section, four great singers and a magnificent rhythm section, playing classic soul, funk and pop covers with a raw energy guaranteed to get everyone up on their feet.

For over a decade, The Raging Horns have brought the house down at weddings, parties, special events and corporate functions right across the UK. The band's mix of enthusiasm, youth and professionalism continues to leave audiences pounding their feet and screaming for more.

What We Do

It's simple - we entertain, and we're very, very good at it.

There's really nothing quite like having brilliant musicians on stage playing songs you somehow know every single word to and we do this with an energy and style that'll leave you breathless.

Why? Because we love doing it. For us, nothing matches the excitement of having an audience in the palm of our hands – the sheer thrill of performing live is what we enjoy and what we're all about.

How We Do It

Brilliant musicianship and fantastic performances don't mean anything if your band don't turn up on time or can't fit in with changing plans. We understand this and remain completely professional in everything we do.

It's your event, you're the client, it's up to us to fit in and so we do just that with a unique mixture of flexibility and professionalism drawn from over a decade of entertainment experience.

From special song requests to fitting in with last minute time changes, we've done it before and we've got it covered.

Who We Are

We've been performing right across the UK for over a decade and having started young, have established a unique mix of youth and experience.

Great musical skill combined with varied backgrounds in professional careers leave us with all the right tools to deliver an evening to remember.

What Others Say

Clients ranging from the BBC to the Earl of Leicester through to Marks & Spencer have been delighted by our performances over the years - we're confident in what we do and we're excellent at doing it, but don't take our word for it . . .
